Website without animation feels like cake without sugar. However, animation keeps the website alive even when it's old and also it keeps audience engage with the website and that makes the website unique.

- Further, for my website I would keep all my buttons with the hover effect so that every page should be visited by the audience.

- The next animation which I would prefer to do in my website would be focus animation, so that when we click at any picture the picture would zoom in and show that would allow the view to drag and see the each part of the picture with zoom in hand.

- Furthermore, I would want my picture to be in 3d effect or with flip effect which would cover two pictures and by clicking it the other pictures flips.

- Therefore, I would not make it flooded with lot of animation but the typography and the colour would be different according to The picture to place.

- Colour combination would red and black as my logo
